Reading Scores Show Status Quo or Better

Monterey Peninsula Unified School District students generally made improvements or at least maintained the status quo in reading last year, according to a report presented to district trustees recently.

Results of the standardized tests show that primary grade youngsters are reading above state and national norms. Sixth and twelfth graders made no gains last year over previous years, but were still achieving the expected level of proficiency. Eighth graders did not fall below their previus year's standard, but were still reading below grade level.

"I'm very pleased with what I've seen, particularly at the primary grades," Supt. Allan J. Petersdorf told the Board. "District-wide results are encouraging. We have made some positive gains."

The Superintendent and other staff members noted that an emphasis on reading in grades one, two and three is beginning to "pay off." The school district has beefed up its primary grade reading programs with special materials, teacher training programs and methods of scheduling students that allow teachers to spend more time working with individual students, administrators said.

Dr. Henry Hutchins, Assistant Superintendent for Elementary Education, and Mrs. Marita Varner, Elementary Reading Consultant, showed Board Members a newly-developed reading system designed to help instructors teach reading skills. The system includes "profile" sheets that enable teachers to chart specific reading skills or deficiencies for each student, and pinpoints for teachers materials available that will help them teach specific reading skills.

Lloyd Swanson, Director of Evaluation, said sixth grade students especially need to develop interpretative skills, and pointed out that concentration in teaching comprehension is needed in the higher grades.

Swanson noted that, in primary grades, students who have been in local schools for several years tend to score better on the tests than students transferring from other school systems. This effect has not held up in higher grades, however, he said.

Petersdorf and Neil Fearn, Assistant Superintendent for Secondary Education, described efforts being made to improve reading in secondary schools this year. The district has appointed Mrs. Elizabeth Ratz as reading consultant for junior and senior high schools, and is putting more money into providing special materials and teacher training in the higher grades.

At their meeting, trustees approved working drawings for a two-story 24,000 square foot Instructional Materials Center to be built next to the district's warehouse in Del Rey Oaks. The building will cost an estimated $315, 000 and will house instructional materials, a print shop, teacher training areas and other facilities.

The Board voted to support a request by the Marina Chamber of Commerce to ask Monterey County supervisors for an update of the Marina area Master Plan. School officials said the updating would aid them in planning for future education needs in Marina.

Trustees signed an agreement with the City of Seaside to cooperate in providing after school recreation programs in that city.

They were informed by legal counsel that recovery of damages from parents of two youths who started a $37,000 fire at Fitch Junior High School last January is a "remote possibility." The parents are Army personnel and have since been transferred.

Bob DeWeese, Director of Program Planning, told trustees that efforts to revise and define district educational goals have nearing completions. He said school administrators have compiled information gathered in a series of PTA meetings last spring, and are nearly ready to return to the PTA groups for a final review. The Board adopted in 1971 a set of educational goals developed by community groups.

Meeting Is Thursday

The regular meeting of the Monterey County Welfare Commission will be held on Thursday, 1:30 p.m., November 30, 1972, in the Health Department Auditorium, 1270 Natividad Road, Salinas, California.

EXPRESS APPRECIATION - Volunteers who worked in Operation Bread Basket held at Highland School in Seaside prepare to distribute donated food to needy persons. Marion C. Woodie, Community Counselor and staff of Monterey Peninsula Unified School District extend warm thanks and appreciation to schools, social and civic clubs, organizations, merchants and individuals who helped make this year's drive successful. Over 60 familes were fed by food drive.

Seaside Rents Computer For New Burglary Patrol

BY JACK O'NEAL
Liaison Unit
California Council on Criminal Justice

At three in the morning three months from now, two uniformed Seaside police officers will sit in an unmarked car 200 feet west of the intersection of Trinity Avenue and Buena Street.

Just before lunch four months from now, the two officers will be in the 1200 block of Kimball Avenue and later will travel along the loop of Sunnyhill Court and then Madera Court and Waring Street.

At eight in the evening five months from now, the two will move in their unmarked car along Olympia Avenue and head northeast on Baker Avenue for a few blocks before they stop and wait just where Phoenix Avenue makes its jog across Baker.

But this is not a random police patrol. Rather, the two have been assigned their beat by a rented computer that makes predictions: in this case, that those three areas are likely to be the onews where burglaries will occur in Seaside at that particular time.

This new kind of burglary patrol (financed in part by a grant of $39,000 from the Council on Criminal Justice) is directed by Captain Dale W. Anderson who thinks it might serve as a model for other cities the size of Seaside.

"The beauty of the program is that it involves the entire community. It's economical, too, which is important for smaller cities. We're not spending much for equipment and personnel because it's selective—not saturation—enforcement. Also, there's no need for a large capital outlay because we rent time on the computer."

Seaside, with a population of more than 40,000, is the second largest city in Monterey county and located on the southern edge of Monterey Bay adjacent to Fort Ord (part of the fort's residential area is within the city limits). It also has a high rate of unemployment, contains little or no industry, and is reliant upon the tourists who really come to visit Monterey and Carmel.

And like most cities of any size or composition, burglary is the biggest felony crime problem.

The police department of Seaside first began to systematically attack burglary in mid-1970 when reserve officer James Nivette started to "feed" year-old burglary reports into a computer at the California Test Bureau of McGraw-Hill where he worked as director of research. His idea was to establish a "data base," a term fondly and often used by computer specialists but also badly needed if an anti-burglary program was to be planned for the city.

Special forms were developed for police officers to use when investigating burglaries. Once the data was keypunched for the computer, it was tested for what computer experts call "mathematical significance" and the forms changed to provide the information the computer needed to make its predictions.

Now the codes of the Bureau of Criminal Statistics are used, as they are increasingly throughout California. Thus, a code of 29-3 can be keypunched easily (means of entry—pick or slip lock or pass key), as can 36-6 (type of property taken —drugs), or 34-1 (how detected —discovered on return of victim).

By 1971, sufficient information had been gathered to permit the department to begin a limited experiment in using a computer to assign patrols.

Anderson says that the results "even amazed us though we ran out of money after five months. But in that brief time we achieved a 15 percent reduction in burglaries and we reduced in half the loss people took in each burglary."

Another Council-funded project (No. 0443, "Seaside Police-Community Relations") also was brought into play. Community aides contacted more than 85 percent of the homes in Seaside and more than 95 percent of the city's businesses, telling them with up-to-date intelligence reports about burglars and fences operating in our area.

"Burglary is certainly not confined to Seaside and I suspect the burglars aren't either. It would be great to have some sort of a regional patrol with, say, a regional computer assigning cars. It probably would work wonders."

So maybe sometime in the future, there will be unmarked, computer-controlled patrol cars parked not only in a Seaside neighborhood but also at the intersection of Forest and Lighthouse in Pacific Grove, or in the hills above downtown Monterey at Soledad and Via Descanso.

Red Cross Appeal To Help Residents Of Big Sur Area

The Carmel Chapter of the American National Red Cross is making an emergency appeal for funds in a Neighbor Helping Neighbor effort to give financial aid to the disaster stricken families of Big Sur who have lost clothing, homes, and businesses as a result of the recent mud slides which followed the heavy rains in that area.

The extent of tragedy cannot be measured by damage figures, and it doesn't matter how many others are involved, the disaster was a personal calamity to each family or individual victim. They need a helping hand.

Funds collected will be used for food, clothing, essential household furnishings, replacement of occupational tools and equipment or medical and nursing care. Let these Big Sur families know that you care, they are YOUR neighbors, and it might've been you.

Send your contributions to the Carmel Chapter American National Red Cross, Box Ar Carmel, CA 93921.

Seasider Wins Car In Contest

The proverbial needle in a haystack was actually plucked out of 1 1/2 million entries in a Nationwide contest this week when the only California winner was a local entry coupon deposited at Del Rey Supply in Seaside.

The lucky winner of an American Motors, new Javelin model automobile was Mrs. Margaret E. Webb of 1071 Sonoma Avenue in Seaside. Mrs. Webb was presented the keys to her new car at Del Rey Supply in Seaside, at 10 a.m. on November 28, by Ed Weiner, President of Del Rey Supply and Mr. K. Jacobson representing the National Retail Hardware Association who sponsored the National contest.

10-Year-Old Needs Blood

Young Christopher Rominger of Watsonville is a Hemophiliac who needs your help.

The 10-year old son of Gary Rominger, a member of the Pajaro Valley Federation of Teachers, he lives with the ever-present danger of bleeding to death because his blood won't clot.

However, recently a way has been found to remove the clotting factor from whole blood and administer it to him.

In order for a supply of this substance, cryo-precipitate, to be kept on hand, a number of donors are needed.

For each donor who gives a unit of "cryo," credit is given for three units. Still it will take 12 donors a month to supply Chris's needs, his father said.

Mr. Rominger asks that donations be given at the Red Cross Blood Center, 333 McKendrie Street, San Jose. The center's hours are 8 a.m. until 7 p.m. on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays; 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. Wednesdays (alternate weeks); 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Fridays and 9 a.m. to noon (alternate weeks). Donor are requested to call 292-6242 if they plan on going Wednesdays or Saturdays.

When making donation, state that it is for Christopher Rominger, Stanford (Children's) Hospital, Cryo and ask that a copy of your receipt be sent to Gary Rominger.

-Mirrors of the Soul (Gibran)-

Help Me Make it Through the Night. - Most people invariably cause their own loneliness. They do this accidently, of course, but they are the perpetrators of their destiny. Loneliness in itself is nothing to be ashamed of; nothing to hide from others; nor is it lasting.

Sometimes I am a bit ashamed of myself when I think how few friends I have amidst a host of acquaintances. Plenty of people offer me their friendship; but, partly because I am reserved and shy, and partly because I am selective and have a narrow taste in friends, I reject offers of friendship more than I accept. Then I am dismayed to look about and see how few persons in the world stand near and know me as I am. Perhaps it is because when I give at all, I want to give my whole heart, and I feel that so few want it all, or would return measure for measure. So loneliness sets in. (Another dream deferred.) Which reminds me of Langston Hughes' "Raisin in the Sun:"

"What happens to a dream deferred?
Does it dry up like a raisin in the sun,
Or does it fester - like a sore - and run?"

Each year Frank Davis, owner of Dave's recruits some of the finest entertainment available for this affair. If you missed one in the past, don't miss this one. Fortunately we were successful. Mr. Hughes is one of the greatest soul singers you will ever hear. His music is easy to listen to or you may just as well get out and do a little soul shaking which I think is good for the body."

Would you believe that TODAY'S ARMY is offering 100 Scholarships. Well it is true. One thousand high school seniors across the country are applying for four-year Reserves Officers Training Corps, (ROTC) scholarships. The Army will award them the scholarships prior to them entering college in the fall of 1973. Once a student is selected, he or she may use it at over 290 accredited colleges and universities offering the four-year Army ROTC program. The scholarchips cover complete tuition, textbooks and laboratory costs, and in addition, provide the student with a $100 monthly subsistence allowance for up to 10 months during the academic year. Based on current college costs, each scholarship is worth over $11,200 for four years.

Applying high school seniors must be 17 years of age by October of the year in which the scholarship begins; must be able to complete all requirements for a commission and a college degree, and be under 27 years of age on June 30 of the year in which they become eligible for appointment as officers. Human Relations Seminars Being Held at Fort Ord

Who is "The Man"? Do the terms "Deuce-and-Quarter", "Playing the Dozens" and "Soul on Ice" mean anything to you? If not, you are culturally deprived--and most likely, white.

If you readily understood these expressions, you are "up" on Afro-American history and most likely black.

This breakdown in communication and appreciation points to only one of the problems areas confronting the military community in the area of human relations.

In an effort to open new channels of communication between minority and majority groups within the Army Combat Developments Experimentation Command at Fort Ord, the Command's Human Relations Office, headed by Second Lieutenant R.C. Miller, is conducting a series of seminars in which every Soldier in the command will eventually participate.

The immediate objective of these seminars is to make military personnel "of the majority" more aware of minority groups and their sensitivities and to develop appreciation for the heritages and lifestyles peculiar to each. Meeting in mixed groups of 15 to 20 persons, Afro-Americans, Chicanos, American Indians and white Anericans from all backgrounds and regional areas informally discuss the nut-and-bolts of racially-based frictions.

Since last August, twelve such seminars have been completed and 227 CDEC Soldiers and WAC's have participated.

In addition to the seminars, CDEC troop counselors established already by the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Section at the unit level, will be used in the area of human relations for counseling, education, and feedback evaluation.

Assisting Lieutenant Miller in the CDEC Human Relations Office is Sergeant John R. Edwards.

Fort Ord BPW Contributes To Scholarship

The officers of the Fort Ord Business and Professional Women's Club, Mary Koss, Alberta Ward and Marge Davis, recently presented a donation to the Federal Personnel Council of the Northern California Scholarship Award Program.

Accepting the check was Mr. Norman Bennett, civilian personnel officer of Ft. Ord.

The Ft. Ord BPW has voted to become a contributing sponsor to this scholarship fund which offers scholarships for children of Federal civilian employees and for a youth employed under the Youth Opportunity programs.

Information regarding the program may be obtained by calling the Civilian Personnel Office at 242-2931.

Tax Institute December 9

California State University at San Jose in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service is sponsoring a one day Tax Practitioner Institute on Saturday, December 9.

Theinstitute is designed to provide the latest IRS rulings and techniques needed by tax practitioners to properly and accurately prepare 1972 Federal income tax returns. Practitioners will also be advised on tax planning for future years. A detailed analysis of the changes in the Federal income taxation of individuals will be presented.

Registration will start on the University campus at 7:45 a.m. in the Concert Hall (Music, Bldg.,) 7th Street. Tax practitioners who wish to attend are urged to contact the University as space may be limited.

There will be a fee of $15 which includes tuition, and all materials pertaining to the institute, coffee and luncheon. Additional information can be obtained by calling the University's Department of Accounting, School of Business Telephone 408-277-3496 or 277-3497.

Four workshops will be provided starting at 8:30 a.m. which will give the participants the option of attending two different topics of their choice during the institute. Three of the workshops will be conducted in three hour periods and presented twice. A partnership workshop will be conducted as one continuous topic.

The IRS District Director for Northern California or his representative will open the institute. He will outline the purpose of the institute relative to the IRS and the practitioner.

Talcott to Tour Pacific

Congressman Burt L. Talcott will participate in a Congressional inspection of military construction sites in the Pacific and the Far East next month to determine needs in advance of the announcement of the 1974 budget expected in January.

Talcott said his Military Construction Subcommittee of the Committee on Appropriations wants to learn firsthand how well this year's construction funds have been utilized and to assess the needs for fiscal 1974.

"In view of the dramatic changes taking place in South East Asia," Talcott said, "we want to make an intelligent judgment with respect to future requirements in these areas."

Talcott will leave December 1st for Hickam Field, Honolulu and thereafter will visit military installations at Guam, Japan, Okinawa, Taiwan, and Thailand.

Pays Off

A lucky but a thinking golfer Ralph Turner, scored his first hole-in-one Sunday at the 13th hole on the Blackhorse Course at Fort Ord. Turner, who lives in Pebble Beach, carries hole-in-one insurance so not only did the clubhouse cheer run freely, but he also won a free trip. At the moment it looks like it will be to Hawaii.

The retired Colonel lofted a seven iron shot just short of the pin, and the ball skipped the last few feet right into the hole. The 13th played to 130 yards from the white markers and there was a 15-mile an hour quarterly wind.

County Fair, Horse Show To Be Separate

"It's not a divorce but a friendly separation," said Monterey County Fair Board President Les Dexon as he announced Sacramento 's approval of the Board's plan for a separate National Horse Show and Monterey County Fair next August.

The Board's plan, prompted by space limitations at the Fairgrounds which have curtailed the scope of the Horse Show, has been approved by the Division of Fairs and Exposition of California's Department of Agriculture.

This approval paves the way for what will be, according to Dixon, a "Class A Horse Show which will be followed by an "expanded, inproved Fair that will include kinds of entertainment heretofore unavailable to the Monterey Peninsula area."

Dates of the Horse Show will be August 6-11, ending on a Saturday night, and the Fair will open the following Tuesday, August 14, for a six-day run through Sunday, August 19.

"This is a real change in our operation," said Dixon, "and there'll have to be a two or three year shakedown period before we can fully evaluate it. Meanwhile, we'll have a unique situation here which all of the other Fairs in the state will be watching."

During the Horse Show, portable box stalls in the area occupied by the carnival during Fairtime will increase stalls available to Horse Show exhibitors by about 100, and there will also be room there for horse trailer parking.

The arcade booths, and possibly some of the food concession booths will be in use during the Horse Show, Dixon explained, and the Hunt Club will be in operation. The West end of the Fairgrounds will be closed off during the Horse Show.

During the Fair, the horse show arena wi l be the scene of a variety of entertainment paid for from a new $36,000 talent budget. Although no definite arena entertainment has been scheduled, the possibilities, according to Dixon, are many and include such things as ice shows, roller derbies and non-competitive equestrian events.

Meanwhile, because of the added facilities for Horse Show entrants, many more categories can be added, especially in the junior divisions.

Luncheon Planned

Seaside Park & Recreation Department sponsoring "Meals on Wheels," will serve a festival buffect luncheon on December 6.

Lunch will begin at noon. Cost for the luncheon will be $1.

Following the luncheon will be a slide presentation on narcotics presented by the Seaside Police Department Community Relations.

Regardless the side of the coin, aloneness is loneliness. Last week I was alone. Families throughout the country had gathered for their grand feast to give their Thanks. Several invitations were extended my way. I declined them all to leave "room" for the ultimate. Those whom love has not chosen as followers do not hear when love calls. The deaf ears are breeding grounds for loneliness. There are two basic kinds of loneliness: Loneliness Anxiety and Existential Loneliness.

Loneliness anxiety is self-induced. It results from a fundamental breach between what one is and what one pretends to be. Fear of loneliness could be the root of loneliness anxiety. Old age is fertile soil for loneliness and the fear of a lonely old age far outweighs the fear of death in the thinking of many people. But the fear of isolation is the most terrible kind of loneliness anxiety.

Existential loneliness is in direct contrast to loneliness anxiety because it is real loneliness of genuine experience. Existential loneliness is created out of the depths of grief, despair, and impotency.

It takes courage, creative courage, to accept the inevitable, existential loneliness of life, to face one's essential loneliness openly and honestly. Loneliness begins in infancy.....

I have a tendancy to deviate slightly, forgive me.

Help me Make it Through the Night. - I was leaving "room" for the ultimate invitation when I was side-tracked. I finally made the call myself many hours into the evening. Ironically, it was expected that I would have called much earlier. I joined the most wonderful Thanksgiving Party I have ever had the pleasure to attend. Many of my friends were there, but they had expected that I would not be available that day. Hence, no phone call.

Thanksgiving is one day set aside for giving thanks to your individual Person for helping you make it through the night. Everyone has their own way of doing this. I enjoyed my Thanksgiving Day and hope everyone else enjoyed theirs. My boss, Andy, and his wife, Jean, went to Sacramento to spend their Day of Thanks with Aunt Lil. Aunt Lil is that vivacious hunk of Heaven with whom anyone can enjoy being around.

Andy has come a long way in the past eleven months. I doubt if anyone has a more sincere reason for giving thanks. His thanks extends to you wonderful people "out there" who used your strength in prayers and deep concern to the extent that good results were inevitable. We all shall spend the rest of our lives thanking you.

Help Me Make it Through the Night. Let us not observe Thanksgiving Day for one day only. If you are a conscientious person, each morning when you awaken you should be glad. The first word escaping your lips each morning should be "Thank You." Someone was responsible for you making it through the night. Give your thanks each morning during the entire year.

Remember, loneliness does not last.

Your Supervisor Reports

Loren Smith

This week I observed several matters which will eventually affect each of us to some extent.

First, I attended another meeting of theMonterey Peninsula Public Transit Agency. The issue of reduction in bus fares for people over 65 years of age as requested by the "Alliance on Aging" was temporarily tabled. This important item will again be taken up after the "Public Utility Commission" has completed a full review of the operation of the Bay Rapid Bus system. Also considered was a route change to serve the Community Hospital....both of these changes will need the approval of the P.U.C. The balance of the meeting was devoted to a report on the Santa Cruz County Public Transit District that is operating very successfully. Mr. Robert Scott, Director of this Transit organization gave a very informative review and answered many questions pertaining to their transit operation. No definite conclusions were reached concerning our transits needs and studies will continue.

On another matter which came before the Board of Supervisors at our November 21st meeting was the Mental Health Program which was discussed with the concern that the program should be expanded to provide social rehabilitation for mentally ill adults and children. The Monterey County Mental Health Advisory Committee has approved a program costing $149,629 of which $112,222 is Federally funded. The State's share is $33,666 and the County cost will amount to only $3,741.00. This whole new concept was generally approved by all board members, however, final official action was delayed for a few weeks in order to give the County Administrator an opportunity to make an indepth study before making his recommendation.

Finally, a very important decision was reached which affects our drug treatment program. The Board of Supervisors voted to approve the development of an application for funding of an increased Methadone Treatment Program. The County is now caring for 100 methadone patients and with the new funding it will enable us to care for 50 more patients and the additional cost will be entirely funded by the State. This action is a good move in the right direction, but much more help is needed to reach the many unfortunate ones who need this assistance.

As I See It

BY MEL VERCOE

Ronald Reagan had the distinction last week of being one of the world's most shook up Governors of all time. A new court decision futher relaxed the abortion laws, and although Mr. Reagan has never actually borne children himself, he does have very definite opinions on how others should perform this controversial but somewhat necessary duty to mankind.

Fifty years before women were allowed to vote (about 1880 A.D.) the menfolk of America enacted some laws that applied exclusively to women. Out of a tremendous sense of self-righteousness and in full knowledge that anything at all to do with sex was obviously dirty and should be abolished, these great Americans decreed that a woman who became pregnant should have no recourse but to carry and bear the child. It did not matter in the least how the pregnancy occurred, whether by rape or incest or otherwise, nor did it matter that the pregnancy might cause the mother's death or cause her to commit suicide or that her whole life might be destroyed by mental problems.

It mattered only that God or somebody had spoken, and that this was the way it was going to be. And it was almost fifty years after women were allowed to vote that these laws were finally examined for what they were, and the thousands of women who died each year from the results of butchery at the hands of quack abortionists no longer had to die. If they could get three doctors to certify that continued pregnancy might impair their physical or mental health they could have a legal abortion, provided they could afford it.

The latest ruling, the one that really shook up my favorite western star, is that a pregnant women, presumably in early pregnancy, can now have an abortion by simply arranging it with her own physician to do it in an accredited hospital. The court ruling held that previous regulations were too vague and therefore unConstitutional.

It is perhaps difficult for some people to understand how our Governor can be so concerned about fetuses and at the same time be so outspoken in favor of capital punishment, but then when one examines his position on American foreign policy in Indochina it is easy to understand that his reasoning is not necessarily related to Mr. Reagan and Mr. Agnew together will probably be on our White House team from 1976 to 1980 or 1984.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Q -- I am a World War II veteran who never used his GI loan benefits. Is it true that I can still use this benegit?

A -- Yes. The Veterans Housing Act of 1970 restored unused, expired loan benefits to all veterans who were previously eligible. These benefits are now available until used.

Q -- I'm going to college under the BI Bill and having trouble with one of my courses. Does VA make any provision for this type of problem?

A -- Yes. VA will pay up to $50 monthly for a maximum of nine months for tutorial assistance if the college says it is needed. This benefit is not charged against the veteran's basic VA entitlement.

Q -- The Veterans Administration has encouraged me to convert my $10,000 National Service Life Insurance term policy to a permanent plan. Will VA recommend the plan I should take?

A -- The agency's veterans benefits counselors do not assume the role of insurance counsalors. However, they have the knowledge and training to adequately explain the various plans available. From this, you can make your own informed decision.

Q -- As a dependent parent, I have been drawing death compensation because of my son who died in military service. I was told at the time of his death that I could not receive dependency and indemnity compensation because his insurance premiums were being waived during service. Has there been a change in regulations?

A -- Yes. A law which became effective Jan. 1, 1972, allows you to elect dependency and indemnity compensation if it is to your advantage. VA is notifying persons receiving death compensation of their rights to draw dependency and indemnity compensation.

Q -- My son was killed during military service in Vietnam. Am I eligible for education benefits from the Veterans Administration?

A -- No. Parents are not eligible for this benefit.

CITY COUNCIL'S IMAGE

In recent months, I have had cause for shame for the actions and public displays of our City Council. We have constantly been irritated by small things which should be resolved behind closed doors; but instead, we aired in public. In one instance, only the news media was present at midnight when the "show" was orchestrated.

It hasn't been many months ago when our City was in the throes of dissension on the Council, and hopefully, we can soon forget. But our Council has been likened to the "old" Council, for which I apoligize. And forget, we would like to do. No more three-ring circus - but it could develop!

Another likeness which may emerge soon is the similarity of the thinking of some members of the present Council to the thinking of the "old" Council in that there is really serious consideration being given to takeover of the Redevelopment Agency. Again! And this in the face of an overwhelming protest vote by the people on June 1, 1971. That Referendum was very costly to the City!

There may not be a Council takeover as such, but any form of change whereby the programs and policies become a wholly Council determination, I intend to object to strenously. I think that the trend is to decentralize government and I agree with this concept 100 percent. I don't think, that the reins of local government should be totally in the hands of five elected officials, but rather have input by many others in the community who can and want to contribute to a City's progress. In other words, the important thing we want to do is to take advantage of the citizen participation process to help our constituency develop skills and techniques to be able to protect themselves so that when we get block grants or revenue sharing as the principal system for federal funding, there isn't a draining off of resources from the areas where disadvantaged people are living who need to receive compensatory services and opportunities. This is critical to us in Seaside since I firmly believe that the successful process - that is tried and proven - in which we are functioning represents the best model we know for strengthening the quality of life in Seaside. The un-paid members of the Redevelopment Agency of the City of Seaside are un-sung, dedicated, appointed officials who continue to devote their collective energies to upgrade our City!

If the Council would succeed in taking over the Redevelopment Agency, you the taxpayer in Seaside would be the loser because YOU would have to pay the staff salaries of the agency personnel! Currently, HUD pays 100 percent of the agency staff personnel. This would cease concurrently with the takeover and your City alone would have to assume an annual salary budger of $265,000. These facts deserve serious consideration by your elected officials.

The Astral Test

Flying around the friendly skies today one may encounter a bit more than the usual business executive on his way to the typical convention. Also using such a modern mode of transportation are some holy men, or so they claim to be, who use the airways to drop into their assorted spiritual centers across America.

The Indian "guru" is becoming very popular today among the young in this country; and more and more are arriving in the West to set up movements which are far outdistancing, in numbers, the so-called youth "Jesus Movement."

America has become fertile soil for spiritual regeneration to be sure. Youth, in general, have turned off the Church as socially negligable, morally bankrupt and spiritually irrelevant. Through experience with psychedelic drugs youth have become aware of the fact that there are higher forms of consciousness than the material plane Westerners believe to be the only one. Leaving behind the naivete of death of God theologians and secular theologians, youth are venturing into the mystic in droves. Not being satisfied with worshiping an unknown god, youth today require nothing less than direct contact with, and experience of, the very Source of the Universe which we call God.

The drug explosion left the door wide open for mystic learders, especially from India, to bring their message and technique to the youth of America. None of this is, in itself, bad. However, I am reminded of a saying of Jesus', "Beware of wolves in sheeps clothing." I have seen true gurus and I have seen charlatans. The charlatans, unfortunately, are amasing the most sizeable following by promising easy paths back to God. They have many things in common. They likely come from India. They all make presumtuous claims of being the one true master of the perfect way. They all discredit each other by claiming that they themselves are the right way, or the best way, or the most direct or fastest way.

They also have in common a great source of revenue, which seems to be willingly shelled out by their American devotees. Maharishi Hahesh Yogi, founder of Transcendental Meditation, and past guru of such notables as Mia Farrow and the Beatles (until they got wise) is reported to have several million dollars in Swiss bank accounts, reputedly gained through initiation fees from his numerous spiritual centers in this country. He also owns his own Lear jet, which of course, he obviously needs to get across American and back and forth to India. Apparently this self proclaimed spiritual genious has not masted astral travel.

Sat Guru Maharaj-ji, the fourteen year old boy wonder from India, who claims to be a divine incarnation, right up there along side of Jesus and Buddha, just left America with three chartered 747's full of American devotees en-route to his ashram in the Himalyas. His "guests" are paying an equivelant of $11 per day to be there, as recently reported by Earth News. Quite an exhorbatant price for a straw mat and rice! Meanwhile, Indians in the motherland are proclaiming Maharaj-ji a fake and even calling for his arrest.

Every true guru I have ever known has taken quite the opposite approach to money. They do not require fees from devotees, since they, themselves, have no need of it, since part of their message is always to get away from materialism.

Likewise, no true guru I have known has tried to set up world movements. They know they can effectively work with only a small group of disiples since they must have personal contact with them for many years in order to effect any true and lasting change.

If any of my readers are looking around for a guru, don't be deceived. The biggest names are likely to be the biggest fakers. Movements are all right for sheep and cattle, but we have no need of new deception from the East. We have enough deception right here in America.

Before going spiritual shopping remember this cardinal rule: The Lord knows where you are in your spiritual evolution, and also when you may need a personal guide, teacher or master. In fact you shouldn't LOOK for a guru at all. He will be right there when YOU are ready for him! And you, at that moment, will KNOW he is legitamate, for every fiber of his being will eminate with divine authenticity.

My Story

I told him my story-How I saw so many changes over a few years-The deserted beach where people laughed and pondered and felt close to the earth, the wind, the sky and the water; and he said; "Vernon, write a song about change", And this is the song I wrote-

1. The movement starts and there we were-the movement flows,
the movement of change is together-
2. Our life goes on and the things that's gone
Blend in with tomorrow
Tomorrow came and tomorrow went
And today I saw a fleeting cloud melting in tomorrow.
3. But best of all in this quaint song
I felt a hand upon my soul
As it quietly said:
"Tomorrow is the change"-
4. Today we met
Today we talked
Today we cried
Today we laughed
And the change is tomorrow.....

Officer Jamer Davis

Officer James Davis a native of the state of Mississippi, was born in the city of Tchula. His family then moved to Peoria, Illinois where he received his formal education. While attending Manual High, Officer Davis was instrumental in forming the first football team, and carried the team on to win 39 out of 40 games, placing them as number two in the state and seventh in the nation. Officer Davis graduated from Manual High School in 1961.

After graduating from High School, he enlisted in the U.S. Army. He was sent to Fort Knox where he obtained his basic training. After completion of basic training, he was assigned to the Monterey Peninsula where he completed his tour with the Army.

While stationed here on the Peninsula, Officer Davis met and married his wife Barbara. Because he liked the area, Jim and his wife decided to make the Peninsula their home.

In July of 1967, Davis again enlisted, but this time with the Seaside Police Department. While on the department he has obtained his Intermediate Cerfificate through the State of California Department of Justice. He has obtained his AS degree from Monterey Peninsula College, and is presently enrolled in Golden Gate College. He now needs an additional 30 units to graduate with his BA degree. Officer Davis has been placed on the Deans list at Golden Gate. He was awarded Officer of the Month for August of 1968 and has been an active member of the Seaside Police Track squad. Through the Northern California Judo Association, Officer Davis has obtained his Brown belt in Judo.

Officer Davis stated that his hobbies and outside interests are in fishing and school. He further stated that his goal is to reach as far as he can in the field of law enforcement. Jim is proud to be part of a very active and progressive community, but wishes that Seaside could lose the image of being the step child of the Peninsula.

It is indeed a pleasure to have a person of Officer Davis' caliber working on the Police department within our community.

NOTE: Credo for Police Humanism (part two)
2. I believe...that people can change. They can change their attitudes, values, life styles and philosophies. If I accept this assumption about human nature then I can avoid the fallacy of personality fixation which tends to classify peopls as "good" or "bad" and incapable of changing behavior once a certain age level is reached. If I believe people can change then rehabilition replaces retribution as a solution to peoples problems I believe.

Bob Wood Reports

California is the bellwether of change for America. Since 1930 our population has more than tripled, aggregate personal income has multiplied 17 times, and the cost of living has almost tripled.

Government, too, at all levels has changed, both in scope and balance. Forty years ago the federal government collected federal government collected about $60 million in personal income taxes from Californians. Forty years later, in 1970, the federal government collected about $14 billion in personal income taxes from Californians. This fact tells one a little bit about the direction governmental change has taken over the span of two decades. Power and money is today firmly lodged in Washington, D.C., like never before in the Nation's history.

With the lion's share of the American tax dollars, Congress has been able to control local and state governments with a network of strings, money strings. Through a confusing system whose parts often overlap, a system of categorical aid, Congress has attempted to meet the needs of an entire nation.

Over the years, the categorical aid program has forced local and state governments to employ at the local level large groups of public employees who do nothing but try to figure out how to get the maximum federal dollars for their local jurisdictions.

On October 20, 1972, President Nixon signed a bill which marks the beginning of the end for government by remote federal control. Called revenue-sharing, the landmark program will disburse $30 billion over the next five years to states (1/3) and local governments (2/3) across America--with no strings attached. For the fiscal year 1972-73 California will receive a total of $713 million. State governments share, about $238 million, is up for grabs from a number of competing "compelling needs." The Governor wants to tie it to an education-finance/homeowner relief tax shift program.

The use to which California puts its share of these new federal dollars is important not only for the sake of immediate state needs, but also for the sake of demonstrating to Congress that state and local governments, such as in each of your communities and in our county, are indeed better equiped to solve our own problems than is a district federal bureaucracy. How we manage these dollars may well determine the shape of the American federalist system for decades to come. The promise of a renewed, people-to-people system of governance is at hand.

Probe Reveals Prison Facilities Do Not Meet Need

"The health conditions for California prison inmates are deplorable and in some cases, schocking," reported Assemblyman Walter Karabian, chairman of the Select Committee on Prison Reform and Rehabilitation created in February by Assembly Speaker Bob Morette. The committee is charged with the responsibility of investigating California prison system.

"We have undertaken an unprecendented, comprehensive examination of prison medical facilities as the first step in a series of studies of problems facing California's correctional system," reported Karabian, "and our findings are contained in a 70-page report submitted to the Speaker of the Assembly and the California Legislature."

The report, released to the public last week, reveals health conditions in prison hospitals which not only violate standards of good medical practice, but also those of common decency.

"This is not an indictment against every doctor in the system; most are doing a remarkable job," stated Karabian. "The doctors are working under extremely adverse and difficult conditions and the doctor-patient ratio is wholly inadequate," he stressed.

Karabian pointed out that vacancies in medical positions are commonplace, primarily because of noncompetitive salaries of doctors in California's prison system.

"When we incarcerate criminals to pay their debt to society, we must provide them with decent medical care, decalred Karabian. "It is not in the best interest of our society to treat inmates as animals. Criminals must be punished in keeping with the legal boundaries, but no California law calls for inhumane treatment of prisoners," the Southern Californian concluded.

The report is also critical of the inmate-medical staff relationship at several prisons, but particularly Folsom Prison. Medical technical assistants, nurses, and on occasion doctors were found to be callous, abusive, and arbitrary in their treatment of inmate-patients.

The committee has recommended affirmative acxion to improve institutional medical facilities, including the following recommendations:

Improved emergency procedures;

Implementation of rigorous cleaning and pesticide control procedures;

Establishment prompt hearing procedures for grievances;

Higher salaries for doctors;

Additional psychiatrists at all institutions;

Greater utilization of medical consultants;

Replacement or renovation of the departmental hospital at San Quentin; and Construction of two new departmental hospitals.

An extensive examination of the adjustment centers and solitary confinement and a study of the transfer policies of the Department of Corrections are listed as priorities in the committee's work schedule for 1973.

Copies of the committee's report entitled "An Examination of California's Prison Hospitals" may be obtained by writing to the Assembly Select Committee on Prison Reform and Rehabilitation, State Capitol, Sacramento 95814, or calling (916) 445-0224.

This Is Time To Beware

The period from Thanksgiving to New Year's Day have been labeled as Danger Days by Attorney General Evelle J. Younger, who offers advice to shoppers, merchants, pedestrians and motorists.

Danger Days, he tells us, affect every resident of the State --adults and youngsters.

Here's some advice for shoppers given by Younger:

Always place purchases in the automobile trunk, lock your car and close the windows, hold your purchases tightly to avoid their being taken, hold on to your purse and don't forget to get your charge plate back from the sales clerk.

Merchants, he continues, should be on the lookout for bad check artists and should always require good identification when cashing checks.

Pedestrians get this advice from Younger:

Cross only at street corners, obey all signals, look both ways before crossing and be sure the way is clear, never cross or enter the roadway from between parked cars and always carry or wear something white when walking at night.

Motorists are urged to have someone drive them home if they plan to drink at holiday parties. Automobile drivers should also keep car windows clean, maintain head and tail lights, be patient in heavy traffic, and always be on the alert for pedestrians and cars entering the roadway from side streets and parking areas.

Younger also has some advice for parents to pass on to their children: hitchhiking is dangerous and should be avoided, and young people should be encouraged to participate in vacation recreation programs at local parks

Conference Is Planned

Elder Marion D. Hanks, an Assistant to the Council of Twelve of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will speak at the Monterey Bay Stake Conference Saturday and Sunday, December 9th and 10th, in Seaside.

Elder Hanks is a nationally-known speaker and youth leader who served as a member of President Eisenhower's Youth Fitness Committee. A former member of the First Council of Seventy, he was appointed to his present Chruch position in 1968. In recent years he has toured overseas military installations where Mormons are stationed.

The visiting Chruch official also may discuss the Chruch's unique Welfare program, which is an integral part of its Gospel teachings, fulfilling the Savior's admonition to His followers to love one's neighbor as one's self and to help one another. "Inasmuch as we have done it unto the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

During the last year, the Church Welfare Program provided direct assistance in commodities and cash to worthy needy in the amount of $17,722,800, saving government welfare programs that amount. Donated labor in farm, food and clothing production and in helping the sick, needy and bereaved totaled 4,005,515 hours. Work opportunities furnished the handicapped, enabling them to be wholly or partially self-sustaining, totaled 1,480,000 hours. The over-all emphasis is in helping others to help themselves, building self-respect and avoiding the evils of a dole.

The Conference session will be held Sunday at 10 a.m. in the Stake Center, 1024 Noche Buena. Stake President Ariel C. Merrill, 1038 Ocean Road, Pebble Beach, says visitors are welcome.

Class Is Planned

Dr. James Hymes, Jr., one of the founders of Head Start preschool programs, will instruct a weekend course for parents and teachers of young children on Friday night and Saturday, December 8-9, in Monterey.

The University of California Extension program titled "Key Concepts in Early Childhood Growth and Development" will focus on young children's normal behavior and needs in preschool and primary grades.

Junior Tennis Tournament Is Planned

The Meadowbrook Swim and Tennis Club of Seaside will host the First Annual Monterey Peninsula Junior Tennis Championships in 1973. The event is tentatively scheduled for Easter vacation.

Bill Foulk, Meabowbrook pro, will be the tournament director and is interested in contacting those who might be willing to assist financially.

The promoters hope to make this tournament the major tennis event of the year for the junior tennis players in the Monterey area. In order to keep entry fees to a minimum, they are looking for business and civic organizations that might be willing to contribute funds for trophies and balls, which are the two major expenses of the tournament will not have U.S.L.T.A. sanctioning, but it does have the blessing of that organization. The U.S.L.T.A. promises to sanction it in 1974 if the in--sanction it in 1974 if the initial outing is successful.

In addition to the junior tournament, Meadowbrook will also host two adult events during 1973--the Northern California Senior Sectionals and the 3rd Annual Monterey Peninsula Class "B". Both are sanctioned by the U.S.L.T.A.
